Introduction

The LSSA is offering an accredited Premium Training Programme in Personal Injury Litigation. The programme is aimed at legal practitioners who want to sharpen their knowledge of personal injury litigation. This qualification is NQF Level 7 and carries 15 credits.

Who should attend?

Learners registering for this unit standard will have demonstrated competence in legal knowledge at NQF level 7 as contained in a recognised law degree such as B Proc or LLB or any other qualification recognised as equivalent to such a law degree in terms of legislation as indicated in the notes to the qualification Post graduate certificate in Attorneys Practice.

Any prospective student who has any other appropriate degree or feels that the training will assist them within their area of responsibility can register for the course and may apply for recognition for prior learning.

The course is focused on providing the following skills:

- The ability to apply substantive law regarding personal injury.

- The ability to assist, advise and represent clients in personal injury claims.

Determination of learning

Method of learning

Online learning using Microsoft teams. The programme presenters facilitate the course.

Assessments

Assessment and Moderation for the formative and summative assessment aligned with South African Qualifications Authority Unit Standard ID 116103 specific outcome and criteria. Education and Training Quality Assurance will conduct external verification to issue certificates.

- Formative assessment: Activities during the online presentation of the course.
- Summative assessment: All registered students will be required to submit a portfolio as a summative assessment which is based on the work covered during both presentation and individual activities. A final mark of at least 50% will qualify the student for a certificate.

Course presenter

Yusuf Wadee is a partner at Wadee and Wadee Attorneys and was previously an attorney representing the Road Accident Fund for 12 years at three law firms. Mr Wadee has been admitted since 2001 and holds a B Proc degree with distinction and an LLB degree from the University of South Africa.

He currently heads the firm's Litigation Department. He has extensive experience in Personal Injury law, Medical Negligence, Road Accident Fund Litigation, and Third-party claims with both High Court and Magistrates Court Litigation.

Mr Wadee's experience with RAF and other litigation varies, having acted for the plaintiff, the RAF and insurance companies. His insight and proficiency in dealing with medical experts culminates in the firm's successful quantification of medical negligence claims. Under his leadership, the Litigation Department has achieved substantial awards in various courts.

As an executive member of the Johannesburg Attorneys Association, Soweto Legal Fraternity, and the Gauteng Attorneys Association, he is an expert member of the LSSA's Personal Injury Committee.
